COUNTY TAXES TO BE REDUCED NEXT YEAR BY $92,000

EVEN WITH BIG ROAD BUILDING PROGRAM; SUBSTANTIAL REDUCTION IN COUNTY TAX IS BOARD RECORD

Taxpayers in Wood county will greet the news of a general reduction in taxes for the year 1923 as a result of the work of the County Board during the session just closed. The sum of $92,539.71 was paired from the taxes of last year by the board this year. The total tax including state tax, state special charges, county school tax, general county tax, county superintendent of schools tax, county aid bridges, and second fifty per cent of the county money to meet the state aid highway fund, amounts to $585,883.68 for the year 1923, according to the figures compiled by County Clerk Sam Church, today. The total of all taxes for the year 1922 was $678,422.39, thus is seen a reduction of over $92,000 for the year 1923.

Highways 41 Per Cent

Of the total amount of taxes forty-four per cent of the money to be raised or $256,694.14 goes to highways. It is divided up for the following purposes, new concrete roads, county aid bridges, state aid highway fund, maintainance of state and county trunk line systems, supervision and surveys of work and the county highway office and highway officials. Since the road building is the greatest service rendered the county and the largest single service done by the county it can be seen that only a fair sum of money goes to that great department of the county government.

County Board Kills New Appropriation For $40,000

Shortly before the County Board adjourned Thursday afternoon ending the fall session a resolution for an additional appropriation for $40,000 fathered by Supervisor A. P. Bean of Vesper and calling for concrete road in the town of Sigel to join the concrete in Vesper was voted down by 34 to 7, with two absent. The highway committee recommended in its report on the resolution for the $40,000 that it be disallowed and the vote of the board sustained the committee's report.

The work of Mrs. O. T. Hougen, assistant to Co. Highway Commissioner Morris, was highly commended on the floor of the board and a raise in salary was voted Mrs. Hougen for her efficient service.

The banks of the county bidding jointly were appointed by the board as county depositories to participate in the county funds according to their capital and surplus as a basis for distribution of the funds. The banks will pay 2½ per cent on daily balances maintained by the county and will be allowed 6 per cent for overdrafts by the county.

The concerte paving, carrying a $20,000 appropriation near the city of Pittsville, was voted out of the 1923 road program when the county taxes were found to be over the legal limits.

Excavators Find Old Stones And Bones At Wausau

Wausau, Wis.—Two old stone grave markers and a number of bones, believed to have been remnants of Wausau's first cemetery, were unearthed recently by workmen excavating for a basement under the Moose Temple on Second street.

One of the slabs was broken and the other, which was 18 by 26 inches by two inches thick bore the inscription: "Wieswald, died at age of 27 years, 7 days and 7 hours, 1856. No physician or doctor could help him." On the broken slab the only legible inscription was "1856." The slabs were used in the foundation of the temple and the bones were carried away with the sand.

The contractor, John H. Schmitz, stated that he did not think the bones were those of human beings, as they were very large.

Oldtimers had no recollection of a cemetery at the present location of the Moose Temple, but it was recalled that in the early days of the village before a public cemetery was established it was the custom for the dead to be buried on their own property, and it is thought that very likely the slabs discovered were from some such private graveyard.

PORTAGE COUNTY DROPS AG. AGENT

COUNTY BOARD DOES AWAY WITH OFFICE: EXPENSE TOO HIGH SUPERVISORS BACKING MOVE ASSERT

Stevens Point, Wis.—The office of county agricultural agent for Portage county was abolished by the board of supervisors of the county at Thursday afternoon's meeting at the court house when a resolution by W. D. Sawyer of Belmont and George Sterz Sr., of Junction City was carried by a vote of 16 to 12.

After the vote had been taken and it was announced that the resolution abolishing the office had been passed, question arose in the board as to whether the county agent, H. R. Noble, held a contract for two years, or whether his term of office expired Jan. 1, 1923, when the resolution goes into effect.

Report Soon

Not willing to entangle the county in complications which might arise if Mr. Noble held a contract for two years, Chairman G. L. Park referred the question to the committee on ways and means to learn as soon as possible, and report to the supervisors at the earliest possible time. C. F. Martin of Almond, chairman of the committee on the county agent, was unable to definitely state whether the contract was for two years or whether the term of office which Mr. Noble is now serving expires January 1, 1923.

The Resolution

The resolution abolishing the office as prepared by Supervisors Sawyer and Sterz, was as follows: "Whereas there is not room in the court house building to make new office room for the supervisor of assessments without a large expense, and

"Whereas, there seems to be some public opinion that a county agent is unnecessary.

"Therefore, be is resolved that we discontinue said county agent after January 1, 1923.

"D. W. Sawyer,
George Sterz, Sr."

BUSY YEAR'S WORK SHOWN IN REPORT OF COUNTY AGENT

R. A. PETERSON HAS TAKEN ACTIVE PART IN ALL PHASES OF AGRICULTURAL AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

Practically every angle of agricultural and community activity in the county is represented in the annual report of County Agricultural Agent R. A. Peterson, recently submitted to the county board. Mr. Peterson's activities, both in diversity and volume of work handled probably exceed those of any other county office.

Since December 1, 1921 County Agent Peterson has either sponsored or appeared on the programs of 181 meetings in all sections of the county. Included in these meetings are Farmers' Institutes, community picnics and fairs, breeders' association meetings and sales, school fairs and program, as well as many other gatherings in every township in the county. He assisted with the program at the Demonstration Days at the Marshfield Experiment Station, which were attended by 1,200 farmers each day and organized a party of Wood county farmers to attend the Hancock Experiment station Demonstration Day. He also organized the Booster Trip to the Field Day held at the John Erickson farm at Waupaca which was attended by 100 automobile loads of Wood County farmer and attended the National Dairy Show at St. Paul with a delegation of Wood county farmers.

Exhibitions of Wood county livestock and agricultural products outside the county were largely handled through the county agent's office. Mr. Peterson cooperated with the county agricultural committee and the county agricultural school in putting on the county exhibit at the state fair which won fourth place and aided in the selection of the seventeen Wood County calves from the boys and girls calf clubs of the county which made the best showing of any Wisconsin county in the calf club competition at the National Dairy Show. He also put on the Wood county exhibit at the State Potato Show at Stevens Point, and assisted generally with the Central Wisconsin State Fair at Marshfield.

Aided Farmers

Other activities include direct cooperation with farmers throughout the county in securing high grade seed, fertilizer, and land clearing materials. The following seed and other materials were distributed through the county agent's office:—150 bushels of soy bean seed to 8 farms; 70 bushels certified seed potatoes to 12 farms; cold resistant corn to farms; ground lime to 13 farms; 3,500 pounds of picric acid to 300 farmers at a total saving of $5,000; 100 bottles of legume culture. Land clearing demonstrations were held at Vesper, Arpin, Sherry, Knowlton, Veedum and Amelia.

One of the most important piece of work undertaken in the county is the campaign for the county wide test bovine tuberculosis which Mr. Peterson is now conducting. Under his supervision 238 essays on bovine tuberculosis were written by the children of 38 schools throughout the county. Petitions for the county wide clean up have been circulated and 1,400 signers obtained. When 400 additional signers are secured the necessary number will have been obtained and all the cattle in the county will be tested.

The boys and girls club work in the county has also been largely in the hands of the county agent and clubs have been organized throughout the county as follows: 75 calf club members (65 showed at the Marshfield fair), 25 pig club members, 15 soy bean club members, 21 corn club members, 76 potato club members and 5 garden club members.

The work of the county agent involves a large volume of correspondence. Mr. Peterson has aided in outlining programs, securing speakers, mailing out notices, and otherwise contributing to the success of meetings of all sorts. He has cooperated with the County Agricultural school, with the County Superintendent of Schools, the newspapers, banks, members of the county board, and others. All this has involved the writing of over 3,000 personal letters and 77 circular letters totaling over 20,000 copies. He has also written a number of press articles and mailed out 5,502 bulletins on various subjects.

PORTAGE COUNTY DROPS AG. AGENT

COUNTY BOARD DOES AWAY WITH OFFICE; EXPENSE TOO HIGH SUPERVISORS BACKING MOVE ASSERT

Stevens Point, Wis.—The office of county agricultural agent for Portage county was abolished by the board of supervisors of the county at Thursday afternoon's meeting at the court house when a resolution by W. D. Sawyer of Belmont and George Stertz Sr., of Junction City was carried by a vote of 16 to 12.

After the vote had been taken and it was announced that the resolution abolishing the office had been passed, question arose in the board as to whether the county agent, H. R. Noble, held a contract for two years, or whether his term of office expired Jan. 1, 1923, when the resolution goes into effect.

Report Soon

Not willing to entangle the county in complications which might arise if Mr. Noble held a contract for two years, Chairman G. L. Park referred the question to the committee on ways and means to learn as soon as possible, and report to the supervisors at the earliest possible time. C. F. Martin of Almond, chairman of the committee on the county agent, was unable to definitely state whether the contract was for two years, or whether the term of office which Mr. Noble is now serving expires January 1, 1923.

The Resolution

The resolution abolishing the office as prepared by Supervisors Sawyer and Stertz, was as follows: "Whereas there is not room in the court house building to make new office room for the supervisor of assessments without a large expense, and

"Whereas, there seems to be some public opinion that a county agent is unnecessary,

"Therefore, be is resolved that we discontinue said county agent after January 1, 1923.

"D. W. Sawyer,
George Stertz, Sr."

Dodge Also Acts

Juneau, Wis.—By a three to one vote the Dodge county board refused to continue the county agent's office. City and village representatives voted almost solidly against appropriating $3,000 for the work of County Agent A. A. Brown the coming year. Farmer representatives protested, but it was asserted that Dodge county was not in need of a county agent.

Stevens Point Will Have Community Christmas Tree

"I am going to give the boys and girls of Stevens Point a jolly time on Christmas eve," said the mayor today. He has already picked out a huge evergreen on the Range Line which towers 25 feet in height, has engaged a man to cut it when the time arrives and to bring it into the city and erect it at the post office.

BUSY YEAR'S WORK SHOWN IN REPORT OF COUNTY AGENT

R. A. PETERSON HAS TAKEN ACTIVE PART IN ALL PHASES OF AGRICULTURAL AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

Practically every angle of agricultural and community activity in the county is represented in the annual report of County Agricultural Agent R. A. Peterson, recently submitted to the county board. Mr. Peterson's activities, both in diversity and volume of work handled probably exceed those of any other county office.

Since December 1, 1921 County Agent Peterson has either sponsored or appeared on the programs of 181 meetings in all sections of the county. Included in these meetings are Farmers' Institutes, community picnics and fairs, breeders' association meetings and sales, school fairs and program, as well as many other gatherings in every township in the county He assisted with the program at the Demonstration Days at the Marshfield Experiment Station, which were attended by 1,200 farmers each day and organized a party of Wood county farmers to attend the Hancock Experiment station Demonstration Day. He also organized the Booster Trip to the Field Day held at the John Erickson farm at Waupaca which was attended by 100 automobile loads of Wood County farmers and attended the National Dairy Show at St. Paul with a delegation of Wood county farmers.

Exhibitions of Wood county livestock and agricultural products outside the county were largely handled through the county agent's office. Mr. Peterson cooperated with the county agricultural committee and the county agricultural school in putting on the county exhibit at the state fair which won fourth place and aided in the selection of the seventeen Wood County calves from the boys and girls calf clubs of the county which made the best showing of any Wisconsin county in the calf club competition at the National Dairy Show. He also put on the Wood county exhibit at the State Potato Show at Stevens Point, and assisted generally with the Central Wisconsin State Fair at Marshfield.

Aided Farmers

Other activities include direct cooperation with farmers throughout the county in securing high grade seed, fertilizer, and land clearing materials. The following seed and other materials were distributed through the county agent's office: 150 bushels of soy bean seed to 8 farms; 70 bushels certified seed potatoes to 12 farms; cold resistant corn to farms; ground lime to 13 farms; 3,500 pounds of picric acid to 300 farmers at a total saving of $5,000; 100 bottles of legume culture. Land clearing demonstrations were held at Vesper, Arpin, Sherry, Knondyke, Veedum and Amelia.

One of the most important piece of work undertaken in the county is the campaign for the county wide test bovine tuberculosis which Mr. Peterson is now conducting. Under his supervision 238 essays on bovine tuberculosis were written by the children of 38 schools throughout the county. Petitions for the county wide clean up have been circulated and 1,400 signers obtained. When 400 additional signers are secured the necessary number will have been obtained and all the cttle in the county will be tested.

The boys and girls club work in the county has also been largely in the hands of the county agent and clubs have been organized throughout the county as follows: 75 calf club members (65 showed at the Marshfield fair), 25 pig club members, 15 soy bean club members, 21 corn club members, 76 potato club members and 5 garden club members.

The work of the county agent involves a large volume of correspondence. Mr. Peterson has aided in outlining programs, securing speakers, mailing out notices, and otherwise contributing to the success of meetings of all sorts. He has cooperated with the County Agricultural school, with the County Superintendent of Schools, the newspapers, banks, members of the county board, and others. All this has involved the writing of over 3,000 personal letters and 77 circular letters totaling over 20,000 copies. He has also written a number of press articles and mailed out 5,502 bulletins on various subjects.

CLEMENCEAU HITS SENATE CRITICS

"TIGER OF FRANCE" LASHES BACK AT SOLONS WHO VOICED DISAGREEMENT WITH HIS NEW YORK ADDRESSES

(By Associated Press)

Boston, Nov. 24—The Tiger of France lashed back at the Senate criticisms today in his first American interview granted to the Associated Press, replying to the criticisms of Senators Hitchcock and Borah.

"Senator Hitchcock called me militarist," Clemenceau said. "Well, I am glad to tell Mr. Hitchcock he is in the Senate, owing to the vote, for only a few more days. When it over, I dare him to go to France and learn the views."

No Black Troops

Answering Senator Hitchcock's demands that he explain why France insisted on using black troops in her army of occupation, the Tiger declared that Hitchcock had been misled by German propaganda and that today there was not a single black soldier in the German territory.

To Senator Borah's statement that Clemenceau was primarily responsible for conditions in Europe because of his great influence in the drafting of the Versailles Treaty, the aged statesman declared that his situation was "particularly distressing," since in France he had been greatly criticized, "for having asked from Germany less than I ought to."

Anna Adams Gordon Sees Extension of "Bone Dry" Regime Throughout World

BY ANNA ADAMS GORDON

President, World's Women's Christian Temperance Union

Philadelphia—For 40 years the Women's Christian Temperance Union has been working for prohibition in 40 nations.

An international educational program has been conducted in practically every civilized part of the globe. Thousands of workers speaking many languages have been carrying forward the work.

All over the world we have been imparting to peoples of all the races the fundamental knowledge of the effect of alcahal on the human system.

Discouraged and Encouraged

Difficulties and obstacles of course have beset these W. C. T. U. workers but they have been encouraged and cheered on by two facts:

ONE: They always have known they were a part of a great organization, that they were all banded together for one purpose, and could count on the support and cooperation of their fellow workers everywhere.

TWO: Almost from the beginning we achieved some results; and with the passing years and the extending of our efforts into newer and larger territories we have seen the work going successfully forward.

In recent years great strides toward world-wide prohibition have been made. With these advancements many reinforcements have joined our ranks. Many rational, thinking men and women the world over who were not originally in sympathy with prohibition have come to see the sound scientific basis of our program and the necessity of our objective and have joined with us and are now lending their best efforts to our work.

To Continue Program

We shall carry on our program along practically the same lines we have followed for 40 years, and we are confident of a successful termination of our long-sought objective of world-wide prohibition.

The position of the W. C. T. U. in the matter f cigarets and tobacco is exactly what it always has been. We do not put tobacco and cigarets side by side with alcoholic beverages.

Our national program on the subject of tobacco is an educational one, outlined and carried forward in the interest of the health of boys and girls everywhere.

It is based on established scientific facts that prove beyond question the injurious effect of narcotics on the physical and nervous system.

We have worked largely with the school and other educational officials and authorities and almost without exception they have shown the keenest interest and readiest disposition to cooperate with us.

Probably This Is Just His Way Of Getting Painters

Chicago.—Malcolm C. Fitch of Chicago, maker and finisher of children's furniture, maintains that beer is the best and least expensive foundation for a primary coat of paint.

"I pour it into my colors for mixing," Mr. Fitch explained. "When I have applied upon the primary coat to the children's furniture I make, I stencil upon it pictures of earths, moons, suns, stars and fairies. All this I do in my little basement workshop. I make the children happy and incidentally I make real beer really useful.

"Any old pine board will serve to make furniture for little folk. To make a chair, cut a piece 12 x 12 inches for the seat, strips 1inch wide for runs and 1-½ inch wide by 18 inches high for legs. The back, 21 inches high, should be supported by two 10 inch cross bars, and should have a panel for the fairy stencil. Use any color of automobile enamel for finish."

Bread And Water Ration To Simulate Memories

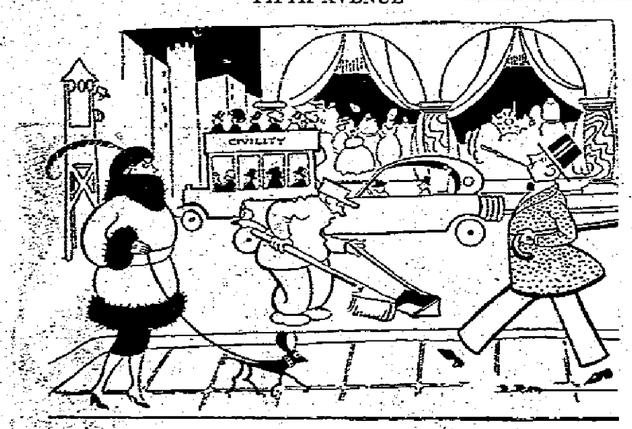
(By Associated Press)

Racine, Wis., Nov. 22—Municipal Judge Burgess has inaugurated the custom of fixing a sentence of three days, on bread and water, for drunks who are continuously intoxicated and who then find themselves unable to indicate the place where they obtained the liquor.

Failure to find the place where the intoxicants are being sold, led the judge to inaugurate this system in the belief that the drunks might be restored their memory after three days of starvation rations.

GUYED TO NEW YORK

FIFTH AVENUE



This street begins at Greenwich Village and grows haughtier per block per minute. Without Fifth Avenue, the New York sightseeing industry would go on the rocks.

There are more vacant millionaires' houses—No, that's wrong; strike it out. Thus: There are more vacant houses of millionaires along Fifth Avenue than anywhere else in the world.

Sightseeing spielers point out the homes of the late Andrew Carnegie, the late Henry C. Frick, the late Alfred G. Vanderbilt; and the wondering tourist gazes upon the endless line of boarded windows and boarded doors and concludes that most all these millionaires are dead.

Nobody but the tax assessor seems to know who owns the other deserted castles, and one wonders why New York's prominent bootleggers don't buy up some of these gilded palaces and have the electric light turned on.

Fifth Avenue is a fine place to take your wife—if you handcuff her and make her stay on top of a bus. If she ever gets loose among the modistes' salons and hat shops you'll have to file a petition in bankruptcy when you get back to the old home town.

Delmonico's, at 44th street, is a good place to look at from the outside. Escorts who wish to distract the lady's attention and make a quick and thrifty getaway are urged to point out the bank building across the street where Sherry's used to dispense high-priced food and where Will Hays now hands out high-priced advice to the movie industry.

Traffic regulations along Fifth Avenue are the best in the world (everything along the avenue claims that distinction.) When the lights flash from the traffic towers everything along the avenue stops except the high cost of living.

Up at 59th street you'll find Central Park. It contains 862 acres, the Metropolitan Museum, Cleopatra's Needle, baby carriages, nursemaids, policemen and other curio. That peculiar smell you notice in the zoo. You can't miss it.

WOMAN'S RIGHT TO SLAY SELF STIRS ENGLAND

CASE OF UNSUCCESSFUL PARTNER TO SUICIDE PACT RAISES QUESTION THAT STIRS INTELLECTUAL LEADERS.

BY MILTON BRONNER

NEA Service Staff Correspondent.

London.—Has a woman a right to commit suicide?

Should she be sent to prison for attempting self-destruction?

The law says "No" to the first question and "Yes" to the second. But a score of the most distinguished persons in Great Britain protest the law is wrong.

The controversy, growing spectacular, revolves around Mrs. Maud Hibbert, survivor in a suicide pact with a man. After lying in jail six weeks awaiting trial on a charge of attempting suicide, she was convicted and sentenced to serve nine months in prison at hard labor.

Half of Hrs. Hibbert's sentence has gone by and petitions for clemency have been sent to the home secretary, urging that she was "led away by the man, has already suffered punishment . . . and that such a punishement is not calculated to increase her respect for life nor act as deterrent to others."

Drinkwater's View

Says John Drinkwater, famous playwright, one of the signers of the petition:

"Before a woman reaches a frame of mind which leads to such an act she must have endured the greatest possible mental agony. To keep her in prison on top of that seems to me both cruel and futile."

Stephen McKenna, novelist, says:

"I hold the view that anybody's life is the property of that particular person. If you wish to take your own life you ought to be allowed to do so. Suicide often is hard on one's family, but I don't think any department of the government has the right to keep people alive if they don't want to live."

Interest Is Widespread

The case is attracting great attention because in some cases under the British law the survivor in a double suicide pact can be indicted for murder as well as for attempting suicide.

Petitions for clemency for Mrs. Hibbert include Viscountess Rhondda, coal operator and suffragist; May Sinclair, novelist; Mrs. Wintringham, member of Parliament; Miss Bernard Shaw, John Masefield, G. K. Chesterton, Maurice Hewlett, Arnold Bennett, H. G. Wells, John Galsworthy, E. F. Benson, Sir Henry Newbolt and Bertrand Russell.

Danish Princess Engaged To Marry Poor Nobleman

Copenhagen.—The recent announcement of the engagement of Princess Dagmar, youngest sister of King Christian of Denmark, has desclosed a romance between a maid of royal blood and the poor scion of an ancient family.

The Princess, who is 32 years old, is understood to have been secretly engaged to her future husband, Joergen de Castenskiold, for some time. He is a nephew of Grevenkop de Castenskiold, until recently the Danish ambassador to the court of St. James.

The engagement was officialy announced late in October at England, the summer residence of King Christian and Queen Alexandrine. All other members of the royal family and those of the de Castenskiold family were present.

Queen Louise rose at the end of the dinner and said: "It gives me great pleasure to announce the engagement of my beloved daughter, Dagmar, to Joergen de Castenskiold. May God bless them both."

The Queen then beckoned to Mr. de Castenskiold. He went to the Queen, who kissed him on the cheek, and then King Christian shook him heartily by the hand.

Patrons Of Pennsylvania Heavy Eaters Figures Show

Chicago.—Approximately 2,600,000 eggs, 1,500,000 pounds of fresh meat, 1,300,00 pounds of potatoes, 500,000 pounds of sugar, 5,000,000 rolls, 150,000 pounds of coffee and 500,000 quarts of milk and cream are consumed yearly by the Pennsylvania railroad dining car patrons, according to the Pennsylvania News, publication of that railroad.

The railroad's dining-car service, serving 10,000 meals daily if operated simultaneously, could serve 4,236 persons at one sitting. The 125 cars in the service, if placed end to end, would form a mobile restaurant approximately two miles long.

A force of about 1,555 employes is required to prepare and serve the 3,575,000 meals which railroad waiters annually carry down the aisles of diners traveling forty and fifty miles an hour.

These meals are prepared in diminutive kitchens having a floor space 19-½ feet long and 2-½ feet wide. Each kitchen having four cooks, a chef and three assistants. Each car represents an investment of $30,000 of which $8,000 is spent for silverware, untensils and linen.

Science Aids New York Police In Identifying Unknown Dead

BY NORRIS QUINN

NEA Service Staff Writer.

New York.—The dry as-dust anthropologist, delving into forgotten strata and piecing together fragmentary bones of prehistoric monsters, today has turned teacher to the New York police.

His knowledge has been turned to practical account in the newest and most spectacular branch of police research—identifying unknown dead.

Six hundred unknown bodies are found yearly in the streets, alleys and waters of Greater New York. But through lessons learned from the anthropologist 87 per cent were identified beyond dispute in 1920, more than 86 per cent in 1921 and a larger proportion of success is looked for this year.

How It's Done

Captain John H. Ayres, chief of the missing presons bureau of the New York Police Department, today told in an exclusive interview with NEA Service how he has accomplished his successes.

"If the corpse is complete and clothed, identification is comparatively simple," he says. "We examine the pockets for letters, documents, jewelry or keys.

"If these are lacking we turn to the clothes themselves. Usually there are tailor marks. In the better grade of clothing the name of the owner often is sewn in.

"Many bodies are identified by shoes. But the most valuable clothing clew is the laundry mark.

"When there is no clothing, we have o turn to the body itself. Are there distinguishing marks—scars or deformities? If not, the teeth are the most accurate—and usually an unfailing means of identification.

"But when a body, besides being unclothed, also is headless, the problem becomes intricate.

Anthropologist Steps In

"It is there that the anthropologist steps in with the knowledge he has gained in reconstructing dinosaurs and pterodactyls from the most meagre fossil remains.

"Just as he would work with a fossil, he examines the pigment of the hair in the victim's body and tells us the color of the hair on the missing head—and sometimes he can tell us the color of the eyes too.

"Taking a legless, armless and headless corpse, the anthropologist tells us the victim's height and weight. He examines the blood corpuscles and tells us the approximate age.

"Or, given only a thigh bone, he tells us the owner's sex, age, weight and height—if the owner was not of abnormal or grotesque proportions.

"Still more—from a fleshless skull, the anthropologist can deduce the owner's age, sex and race and even make a good guess as to his nationality.

"All these things are being done—anthropology is being applied daily and it's yielding identifications that can't be disputed. It gets results when members of the dead person's family cannot identify the corpse."

Universal finger-printing would do away with most of the expense and difficulty now involved in identifying unknown dead, Captain Ayres believes.

Fight To Oust Married Women Teachers In London

London.—The fight against married women acting as school teachers in the public schools of England, which has been going on for some time reached a climax when sixty-four married women teachers were discharged from their duties in one of the London suburbs.

During the war married women were practically the only persons available for teaching and since then they have kept their jobs despite the efforts of many veterans associations to have them expelled in order to allow ex-service men and nurses to resume their positions.

Women Of Ashanti Send Silver Stool To Princess Mary

London.—A silver stool has been presented to Princess Mary, Viscountess Lascelles, as the wedding gift of the Queen Mothers of Ashanti and the Gold Coast. The gift was presented by Lady Guggisberg, wife of the governor of the Gold Coast, it having been given her by Queen Mother Gewa Akoto, of Ashanti. The stool is an exact replica of the Queen Mother's own stool.

Accompanying the gift a letter from Queen Akoto, deschibing how the stool was made and consecrated. The letter reads as follows:

"I place this gift in your hands. It is a gift for the King's child on her wedding.

"Ashanti stool-makers have carved it. All queen-mothers who dwell here have contributed toward it.

"It may be that the King's child has heard of the Golden Stool of Ashanti. That is the stool which contains the soul of the Ashanti nation. All we women of Ashati thank the Governor exceedingly, because he has declared that the English will never again ask us to hand over that stool. This stool we give gladly. It does not contain our soul, as the Golden Stool does, but it contains all the love of us Queen Mothers and of our women.

Press Club Has Big Bronze Bell Of Cruiser Milwaukee

Milwaukee, Wis.—Among the many relics to be found in the Milwaukee Press club, where hundreds of signatures of presidents, congressmen prominant actors, writers and artists who have been in Milwaukee, have been placed in seperate panels around the walls of the club, there is to be found a 800-pound brons bell, of the wrecked U. S. S. Milwaukee, given to the local club by special act of Congress. Dec. 13 the bell will be dedicated with appropriate ceremony in the clubrooms.

The club and its members through the medium of their publications took a leading part in the movement to have a navel vessel named after this city.

The cruiser went on the rocks off Eureka, Cal., Jan. 13, 1917 and was so completely recked that it was stricken from the navy lists June 22, 1919, and ordered sold as junk. Charles W. Lamb of the Press club, conceived the idea of bringing to Milwaukee some relic of the cruiser which bore the city's name and it was decided nothing could be more representative or portable than the ship's bell, and that no resting place could be more appropriate than the Press club.

CALVES IS CALVES COWPUNCHER SAYS; HE SHOULD KNOW

RED SUBLETT HAS SEEN THEM IN TEXAS AND NEW YORK AND THINKS THEY'RE ALL ABOUT THE SAME.

BY DUDLEY SHMALL,

NEA Service Staff Writer.

New York.—"This here is the greatest light in the greatest town in the world," said Red Sublett, "but a heifer calf is a heifer calf wherever you go."

The cowpuncher to devote himself and his attention to the study of that important cowboy subject to which I refer—the study of calves. Look at 'em!"

The scene was the park across from Madison Square Garden, where Red and many of his kind were striving for hospital trips and other prizes in Tex Austin's honky tonky rodeo. To the park come daily the gaudiest 36 models from the nearby cloak and suit district for their noontime airings. Red and his fellow students were learned to wave themselves up against the iron fences between 12 and 1 and watch the parade go by.

"Near as I can figger from what I've seen, always allowing that I can't see so much as I couldn H'I'd been here when they was wearing 'em shorter," Red continued, "there ain't so much difference between these calves what we're seeing now and the calves which cowboys meets professionally.

Three Kinds of Calves

"Take three generalized classes for example. There's show calves and beef calves and bucking calves. You got them kinds here in New York just the same as we have them in Texas. Only you New Yorkers see mostly the show calves, for the other kinds seem to have took shelter under these long skirts from Paris."

Red lighted a cigaret, blew a whiff of smoke through his nose and tossed the match on the grass.

"Ever hear of a dogie'?" he went on. "That's a calf with a brand onto it which won't stay near its mother. I bet we're seein' plenty of dogies going by right now. Then the east and west both has lots of 'mavericks,' which is calves that ain't got no brand but just runs around loose. We have what we call 'woolies' too. Maybe you city guys use that name for the calves with fuzzy coverings. And how about 'deadheads'?—the same being calves which just sits down and waits peaceful for a cowboy to walk up to 'em."

Thoughtfully Red looked over the passing show, unmindful of the curious gazes of the New York girls who were visibly impressed by his enormous sombrero, his checkered shirt, and his fancy boots.

"There's only one big difference as I can see," he continued. "The calves out west hung around a rang all the time, while mly guess is that these here ones never get near a range only to ask their mother in supper ready."

Better Living Conditions Increase Indian Population

Washington.—The Indian race is not a dying one. E. B. Meritt, Assistant Indian Commissioner, says the 340,917 Indians now in the United States represent an increase of approximately 13,500 over the number ten years ago.

The increase has been brought about, the assistant commissioner says, by improved housing conditions and increased hospital and medical facilities. There are 78 hospitals at the Indian reservations and schools, and there are employed in the Indian Service 150 physicians, 81 nurses and 70 field matrons, the latter visiting the homes of Indians to improve living conditions.

Three of our most beautiful words are "Dinner is ready."

SCIENCE AIDS HUSBANDRY

Extermination of the destruction of the boll weevil appears to be a likely expectation as a result of experiments conducted by Dr. Wilmon Newell, Plant Commissioner of the Florida Plant Board and Director of the University of Florida Experiment Station. This scientific development will save millions of dollars to planters.

It is another exemplification of what effort and application can do. For some time it had been known that the weevils could be killed, by spreading poison on the ground, prior to the appearance of the first squares of the cotton boll. Dr. Newell simply removes the first squares, or bracts subtending the flowers, and destroys them, and dusts the plants and ground with calcium arseniate or lead arseniate. This shows how an idea can be applied, or how to put theory to use.

Just that sort of assistance is being done in Wood county every month in every year. Through the county agent, the ideas and methods of experts are put into practice. Our county agent in contact with the leaders in the agricultural work, has done thousands of dollars worth of good in Wood county. Ideas are important but it takes an able executive to put them into practice. This county is to be commended upon having such a system. Results obtained here in Wisconsin will equal the wonderful work of science in fighting the boll weevil of the south.

ATTEND THE CELEBRATION

The people of Wisconsin Rapids and community are urged to attend the celebration which is to be held jointly by the villages of Port Edwards and Nekoosa under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce Monday noon on the new concrete highway between Port Edwards and Nekoosa on State Trunk Highway 13. The completion of this new road is an important project to the entire county.

COUNTY HIGHWAY LAWS

The first step toward bringing about an uniform set of rules and laws governing traffic on highways in Wood County was taken on Thursday by the County Board, when the highway committee was instructed to draw up a code for the adoption of the board.

Probably the one most important feature of the proposed county highway laws, should be the ordinance requiring all non-motorized vehicles to carry lights, at least one light. Those who drive an automobile without lights do so at their own peril and in violation of the state laws. There is no state law which requires a horse drawn vehicle to carry lights yet those who drive horses are imperiling their own lives and the safety of others. This is especially true because the motor traffic is becoming heavier each year and the concrete roads are drawing tourists in ever increasing numbers.

We sincerely hope the highway committee will take an active interest in this proposition.

Detroit Woman Says Tanlac Is Simply Grand

"Tanlac has done me a world of good and I can't say anything too good for it," declared Mrs. Augusta Kramp, 1600 Dubois St., Detroit, Mich.

"Stomach trouble brought me to such a wretched condition I was twenty pounds underweight and unable to do a bit of housework. I simply had to force myself to eat enough to keep going, my appetite was so poor, and even what I did eat seldom agreed with me. Every day I had splitting headaches, and such dizzy spells I would nearly fall down.

"My husband urged me to take Tanlac and almost from the very start I felt stronger and better. Now my troubles are all gone and I just feel fine all the time. Tanlac is simply grand."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists. —Advertisement.

WHAT DOES AMERICA NEED?

Write your views on national questions to the editor of the Tribune. They will be printed in this column, and will be included in a tabulation of the opinions of newspaper readers throughout the country.)

MORE CONSIDERATION

Editor Tribune:—

You ask "What Does America Need?"

That is simple—a return to the old Golden Rule, a decent regard for law and the rights of others.

All is selfishness now. The old spirit of "love thy neighbor," which was the very backbone of American life in the hardy pioneer days, has perished.

Two automobiles collide. The occupants of the cars rush together. To help any injured person? No, No, to try to avoid damages by putting the blame on the other fellow. In many cases, this selfishness has reached the point where fist fights are indulged in to decide who had the right of way.

A pedestrian crosses the street. An auto approaches. The autoist expects the pedestrian to hop out of his way. The pedestrian wants the autoist to stop for him. The result is an exchange of heated language. It happens millions of times a day in America.

The same is true even of our laws. A crowd of peopleto be benefited raise a lobby fund, send representatives to Washington or Madison and work for passage of laws benefitting this group. Another crowd, who are hit by some proposed law, start lobbying or agitating against it—not because the law is unjust but because it will cost them something.

What does America need? A revival of the old American spirit. America, bodily, has grown wonderfully. America's soul, however, was dwarfed in the process.

W. F.

TOO MANY LAWS

Editor Daily Tribune:—

America needs repeal—repeal of every law it possibly can do without.

I don't say it wants less government. That's true too. But excess government naturally follows from unnecessary, mischief-making interfering, vicious, legislation. It would disappear with the repeal of the laws which provide for it.

We do, of course, need a simple code. If that's what we had it would be easy to enforce. But laws which generally are disregarded make it impossible to properly enforce the few we need.

I don't argue for no law. I argue only for a minimum.

My ideal party would adopt as its sole platform "repeal." Its policy would be to regard every law as objectionable unless its value, not alone to some group but to the overwhelming majority of the people could be clearly shown—to clear the statute books of everything else and to keep them clear.

I don't think this is what the country has definitely figured out that it wants, but that, I think is what it really does want and is groping for.

Japanese To Encourage Building Of Better Boats

Tokyo.—A bill drafted by the Communications office for the encouragement of building better and improved steamers has been submitted to the finance office. Officials of both communications and finance office now are seeking revenue to carry out the plan.

The object of the plan is to grant a low-interest loan amounting to eighty million yen to Japanese steamship companies to build 150,000 tons of superior steamers in the next five years. The proposal was made to compete with British and American vessels.

According to the plan the vessels to be built next year will be used for service between Japan and Northern ports of the United States.

Canada Provides $40,000,000 For Improved Roads

Ottawa, Ont.—Forty million dollars is being spent on good roads in Canada this year. Highways construction has been carried on in a larger scale this year than ever before and the appropriations for work are the highest on record, according to A. W. Campbell, commissioner of highways.

"Of the total sum spent, $15,000,000 will be used on Federal aided highways, of which $6,000,000 will come out of the Dominion treasury," said Mr. Campbell. "Expenditures being made by the provinces and counties on roads not receiving federal assistance will amount to about $25,000,000."

There are now 1,000 miles of permanent paved road in Canda, or sufficient mileage to extend one-third of the distance between the Atlantic and Pacific coast, according to Mr. Campbell, who added that this mileage is being increased as rapidly as possible.

Have Five Year Program

The Dominion government has appropriated $20,000,000 to be used in construction of main highways and market roads, calculated to cover a period of five years. This is divided among the provinces on the basis of population. Under the terms of the grant the provinces carry out the road building, and the government, an approval of the plans, contributes 40 percent of the cost. This guarantees standardization of roadways and places only 60 per cent expense on the provinces.

Highway improvement has been especially rapid in the West, due to the rapid development of the great agricultural districts by the influx of new settlers, states Mr. Campbell. Farmers are doing much of their marketing with motor trucks and crops are quickly transported to market over the modern highways.

The first woman in the United States to apply for admission to the bar was Myra Bradwell, of Chicago, in 1870.

Auto salesmen are too ambitious. McAdoo reports his car was stolen while he was attending an auto show.

THEATRES

PALACE TONIGHT "GIFT NIGHT"

Palace gift nights with orchestra and fine gifts are proving very popular as largeerwods take advantage of them on every occasion.

Tonight the Palace management will give away "Ree," FIVE large fat ducks to five different seat holders. The show is "The Hidden Woman," an Allen Dwan production with an all-star cast, starring Mary Alden, Evelyn Nesbit, Jack Evans, Albert Heart and Crawford Kent, which assures you a well acted picture. The comedy is "The Messenger" featuring that very funny Jimmy Aubrey in his very latest laugh getter.

Tuesday and Wednesday the Palace presents for your approval "Human Hearts". More actors were recruited by pictures from the stage versions of "Human Hearts" than entered the cinema field from any other individual Broadway success. This interesting fact was disclosed by a check-up of the statistician at Universal City while the famous old play was being filmed. "Human Hearts" in film form stars House Peters. It will be seen here on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. The Hal Reid play gave his first real start to Wallace Reid, the author's son Percy Hilton followed Wally in the east.

The following actors gained fame in the role of Tom Logan. They are all in the movies today: Louis Leon Hall, Frank Woods; John Boone, George Murdock, Walter Law, Lincoln Plumer, Joseph Gordon, Scott Siggins, Richard Allen, Sherman Rowles, E. P. Sullivan, John D'Ormonde.

Other screen impersonators who were in the cast of "Human Hearts" are John Haight; Frank Gibbons, Frank Darien and Harry Dunkinson, who played the part of the half-witted boy. The following film actresses played the part of Barbara Kent in the play: Evelyn Selbie, Rita Hardan, Della Clarke, Margaret Downes, Frances Forde, Maude Leone, Pearl Forde. The part of Benton was acted by Jay Packard, Herbert Beets, Edward Bailey and Harry Knapp.

POET EDWARDS AUDITORIUM

We realized the day after we had booked the Harold Lloyd comedy, "Grandma's Boy" that we had paid a price for this picture that probably amounts to double the amount ever paid for a comedy in the Tri-Cities, and far more than we really could afford to pay.

Why did we do it? Well, in the first place we wanted the people in the Tri-Cities to have a chance to see the picture. No one else seemed willing at the time to pay the price, so we did.

In the second place, which is the real reason possibly, the story told by the salesman of the gathering of grandmas he had seen attend the show in a nearby city, appealed to us so strongly that we had a longing to see just such a gathering in the auditorium.

For that reason we have arranged a program that will be well worth the trip down here and we assure you an evening you will remember for some time.

There will be a special prologue and there will be a musical setting for the picture by a five piece orchestra under Cleve Akey.

As each one passed Miss Bradford, the guardian, they greeted her with the Hand Sign of the Fire. The different parts of the Fire Ceremony were taken by Phyllis Walter as "Work", Lois Wilcox as "Health" and Mary O'Day as "Love."

Nellie Farrell was initiated as a new member. Mary Wagner, Verna Deniston, Janet Sampson took rank as Wood Gatherers. Mary O'Day and Phyllis Walter became Torch Bearers, the highest rank of Camp Fire. The program was varied with songs, talks and an Indian legend told by Verna Deniston.

Among the visitors were Mrs. R. M. Gibson, Mrs. H. A. Sampson, Miss Esther Burmeister, Mrs. Clara Parmeter, Mrs. W. E. Dunn, Mrs. G. S. Beardsley, Mrs. A. A. Bennett, Mrs. Elmer Knox, Misses Florence Lyon, Belle Quinn and Edna Hatch and Mrs. O. T. Hougen.

PALACE TONIGHT "GIFT NIGHT"

Palace gift nights with orchestra and fine gifts are proving very popular as largeerwods take advantage of them on every occasion.

Tonight thel' alace management will give away "Bree," FIVE large fat ducks to five different seat holders. The show is "The Hidden Woman," an Allen Dwan production with an all-star cast, starring Mary Alden, Evelyn Nesbit, Jack Evans, Albert Heart and Crawford Kent, which assures you a well acted picture. The comedy is "The Messenger" featuring that very funny Jimmy Aubrey in his very latest laugh getter.

Tuesday and Wednesday the Palace presents for your approval "Human Hearts". More actors were recruited by pictures from the stage versions of "Human Hearts" than entered the cinema field from any other individual Broadway success. This interesting fact was disclosed by a check-up of the statistician at Universal City while the famous old play was being filmed. "Human Hearts" in film form stars House Peters. It will be seen here on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. The Hal Reid play gave his first real start to Wallace Reid, the author's son Percy Hilton followed Wally in the east.

The following actors gained fame in the role of Tom Logan. They are all in the movies today: Louis Leon Hall, Frank Woods, John Boone, George Murdock, Walter Law, Lincoln Plumer, Joseph Gordon, Scott Siggins, Richard Allen, Sherman Rowles, E. P. Sullivan, John D'Ormonde.

Other screen impersonators who were in the cast of "Human Hearts" are John Haight; Frank Gibbons, Frank Darien and Harry Dunkinson, who played the part of the half-witted boy. The following film actresses played the part of Barbara Kent in the play: Evelyn Selbie, Rita Harlan, Della Clarke, Margaret Downes, Frances Forde, Maude Leone, Pearl Forde. The part of Benton was acted by Jay Packard, Herbert Beets, Edward Bailey and Harry Knapp.

PORT EDWARDS AUDITORIUM

We realized the day after we had booked the Harold Lloyd comedy, "Grandma's Boy" that we had paid a price for this picture that probably amounts to double the amount ever paid for a comedy in the Tri-Cities, and far more than we really could afford to pay.

Why did we do it? Well, in the first place we wanted the people in the Tri-Cities to have a chance to see the picture. No one else seemed willing at the time to pay the price, so we did.

In the second place, which is the real reason possibly, the story told by the salesman of the gathering of grandmas he had seen attend the show in a nearby city, appealed to us so strongly that we had a longing to see just such a gathering in the auditorium.

For that reason we have arranged a program that will be well worth the trip down here and we assure you an evening you will remember for some time.

There will be a special prologue and there will be a musical setting for the picture by a five piece orchestra under Cleve Akey.

Bring Grandma to the show.

BELIEVE HELIUM GAS SOLUTION OF BLIMP PROBLEM

USE OF NON-INFLAMABLE GAS HELD ONLY WAY OF FURNISHING PROTECTION AGAINST DISASTERS.

Washington.—The recurrance of disasters to hydrogen-inflated air ships has turned public attention to the possible development of helium—a non-inflamable gas first discovered during the world war and regarded by many exponents of air navigation as the one solution of the lighter-than-air craft problem.

Government and other experts believe that the use of helium would have prevented the terrible disasters of late years, such as that of the Roma and the C-2. While only one ship, an army blimp, thus far has been filled with helium, quantity production of this rare gas now is foreseen.

Find Cheaper Method

Satisfactory operation, on a laboratory scale, of a simplified and much cheaper method of recovering helium from natural gas is reported through the American Chemical Society by H. Foster Bain, director of the United States Bureau of Mines. In test made within the last month at the cryogenic laboratory in the Interior Department Building, helium was recovered in one operation in sufficient purity to use in balloons and dirigibles.

"This development" says Director Bain, "indicates that very soon the cost of the commercial production of helium for lighter-than-air craft will be greatly reduced."

Chemists of the Bureau say the cost of producing helium has been too great to permit of widespread use. However, with the new methods found, they look forward with confidence to its general use in the near future.

Has All Advantages

Helium has 92 per cent the lifting capacity of hydrogen, can be easily stored, does not rapidly deteriorate, does not readily leak from a gas bag and has all the advantages of hydrogen without the great danger drawback. In fact, helium makes a more satisfactory filler, navy dirigible pilots have told the Bureau chemists, because a helium-filled bag is steadier in the air.

The government now has stored approximately 2,000,000 cubic feet of helium, and is producing at the rate of 15,000 cubic feet daily at its commercial production plant at Fort Worth, Texas, the only helium plant in the world. As soon as this plant has started running at full capacity, it is expected the government will be able to produce helium at the low cost of ten cents a cubic foot.

The Fort Worth plant was run last year for only a few months and that only on experimental bases. The plant was started running continuously, however, on October first.

Occurs In Natural Gas

Helium occurs on earth only in certain natural gases, much of which, in this country, were used for illuminating and power generating, refining out and discarding helium among other "impurities." Such gases occur also in Italy and Canada, but no helium is being recovered in those countries. Representative Julius Kahn, of California, has introduced a bill in Congress to support a definite program for helium recovery, action upon which is expected from the next session of that body.

"Meanwhile," says Dr. Moore, of the Bureau of Mines, "every effort is being made to encourage the production of helium by commercial companies, and every assistance will be given by the government in such development."

Under the present system of helium extraction, followed in Fort Worth, a 64 per cent return of helium is obtained from the natural gas. This 64 per cent must be put through a purifying process before it can be used. By the new method, only one process of extraction is necessary, after which the gas is supplied directly to the aircraft.

The Fort Worth plant employes 2000 men under the direction of Commander Olsen. Funds are available for the operation of the plant until Jan. 1 at least and then it is expected that enough will be forthcoming for the commercial production tests.

New Zealand Considering High Power Radio Station

Sydney, N. S. W.—The construction of a high-power wireless station for New Zealand, which would be able to communicate with the large stations of America, Great Britain and Europe, is under consideration, the postmaster-general has informed the Dominion House of Representatives.

The government is considering whether it should establish a station which would render the Dominion independent of the Empire chain system for purposes of world wide communication, he said.

The cost of setting to work a station capable of communicating with any part of the world would be about 100,00 pounds sterling, he estimated.

Nelson's Flagship Must Make Journey Overland

London—An effort is being made in England to raise $500,000 for the preservation of the Victory, Nelson's flagship in the Battle of Trafalgar.

The famous vessel is at present at Portsmouth, in a very bad state of repair. So far has she deteriorated that, if it is decided to bring her to London, she will have to come overland; she could not undergo the journey by water.

Games Tomorrow Will Determine "Big Ten" Title

(By Associated Press.)

Chicago, Ill. Nov. 24—Championship honors in the "Big Ten" conference today rested on the outcome of three of tomorrow's football games.

While interest centered generally in the Chicago-Wisconsin, Iowa-Northwestern and Michigan-Minnesota games, the Illinois-Ohio game promises to draw a record crowd, as Saturday is "State" and "Kiwanis" day at the field.

The Badgers entrained this morning for Chicago and this afternoon are to take a light workout at Stagg Field. The lineup for the game is still in doubt, with indications, however, that one or two positions will be filled by substitutes.

Michigan arrived at Minneapolis today and a light workout is expected for this afternoon.

Vote Aid For Memorial

Stevens Point, Wis.—The county board of Portage county yesterday by an unanimous vote appropriated $500 toward a fund being raised for the erection of a memorial to Portage county's soldiers in the World war.

EXPECT BOWLING SEASON TO OPEN MONDAY EVENING

MAJOR LEAGUE ROSTER IS COMPLETE; COMMITTEE WANTS THREE MORE TEAMS FOR MINOR LEAGUE

Activity in the Elks' bowling leagues will start Monday evening if a sufficient number of teams are signed up in time to permit the making up of a schedule, Wm. Drath, chairman of the bowling committee stated today, following a meeting of the committee with captains of teams at the Elks club last night at which all preliminary arrangements were made.

Major League Has Six

There will be two leagues, a major and a minor, this year as heretofore, with six teams in each league. The major league berths are all filled already, but only three teams have signed up in the minors so far, and Chairman Drath is anxious to have the quota filled either today or tomorrow so that schedules may be prepared at once. If the minor league line-up is not complete by Monday it is expected that the majors will commence their schedule then anyway, as the season is already growing late.

Old Teams Back in Race

Four of last year's major league teams will be in the race this year, with the prospect that most of the members of the other teams will be included in the personel of the two new organizations which have signed up. The teams which have entered follow: Normingtons, Foundries, Sure-Shots, Consolidated, Highways, and a sixth organization captained by Dwight Teas which has not yet announced its name.

The American Legion, Schill Motor Co., and the Wood County Bank have entered teams in the minor league.

Young American Granted Release From Russ Navy

Moscow—Henry P. DuBellet, Jr., of New Orleans, La., 20 years old, who was conscripted into the Russian navy in 1919 because he could not show papers proving non-Russian citizenship, has been permitted to leave Russia upon representations made by the American Relief Administration.

When DuBellet eventually found his indentification papers, he managed to get a statement from Soviet authorities acknowledging his American citizenship, but the naval commanders at first refused to recognize these as entitling him to release from naval duty. The intervention of the American Relief Administration then was successful DuBellet has gone to Paris to join his father.

Probably the first woman to hold an important post in the American diplomatic service was Miss Jessie Coggeshall, daughter of William T. Coggeshall, who served as United States minister to Ecuador in the late '60s. Miss Coggeshall accompanied her father to Quito as secretary of legation and had full charge of the office for four months after his death.

Among the first women to enter the field of motion picture directors is Miss Dorothy Farley, who has directed some of the most successful of film plays.

"The Masquerader"

By Catherine Cecil Thurston

"Yes. One man is an artist, the other a millionaire; one wants to know what fame is like, the other wants to know how it feels to be really sinfully rich. So they exchange experiences for a month." She laughed.

Chilcote laughed as well. "But how?" he asked.

"Oh, I told you the idea was absurd. Fancy two people so much alike that neither their friends nor their servants see any difference! Such a thing couldn't be, could it?"

Chilcote looked down at the fire. "No," he said, doubtfully. "No. I suppose not."

"Of course not. There are likenesses, but not freak likenesses like that."

Chilcote's head was bent as she spoke, but at the last words he lifted it.

"By Jove! I don't know about that!" he said. "Not so very long ago I saw two men so much alike that I—I" He stopped.

Lillian smiled.

He colored quickly. "You doubt me?" he asked.

"My dear Jack!" Her voice was delicately reproachful.

"Then you think that my—my imagination has been playing me tricks?"

"My dear boy! Nothing of the kind. Come back to your place and tell me the whole tale." She smiled again, and patted the couch invitingly.

But Chilcote's balance had been upset. For the first time he saw Lillian as one of the watchful suspecting crowd before which he was constantly on guard. Acting on the sensation, he moved suddenly towards the door.

"I—I have an appointment at the House," he said quickly. "I'll look in another day when—when I'm better company. I know I'm a bear today. My nerves, you know." He came to the couch and took her hand; then he touched her cheek for an instant with his fingers.

"Good-bye," he said. "Take care of yourself—and the kitten," he added, with forced gayety, as he crossed the room.

That afternoon Chilcote's nervous condition reached its height. All day he had avoided the climax, but no evasion can be eternal and this he realized as he sat in his place on the Opposition benches during the half-hour of wintry twilight that precedes the turning-on of the lights. He realized it in that half-hour, but the application of the knowledge followed later, when the time came for him to question the government on some point relating to a proposed additional dry-dock at Talkley, the naval base. Then for the first time he knew that the sufferings of the past months could have a visible as well as a hidden side—could disorganize his daily routine as they had already demoralized his will and character.

The thing came upon him with extraordinary lack of preparation. He sat through the twilight with tolerable calm, his nervousness showing only in the occasional lifting of his hand to his collar and the frequent changing of his position; but when the lights were turned on, and he leaned back in his seat with closed eyes, he became conscious of a curious impression—a disturbing idea that through his closed lids he could see the faces on the opposite side of the House, see the rows of eyes, sleepy, interested, or vigilant. Never before had the sensation presented itself, but, once set up, it ran through all his susceptibilities. By an absurd freak of fancy those varying eyes seemed to pierce through his lids, almost through his eyeballs. The cold perspiration that was his daily horror broke out on his forehead; and at the same moment Fraide, his leader, turned, leaned over the back of his seat, and touched his knee.

Chilcote started and opened his eyes. "I—I believe I was dozing," he said, confusedly.

Fraide smiled his dry, kindly smile. "A fatal admission for a member of the Opposition," he said. "But I was looking for you earlier in the day, Chilcote. There is something behind this Persian affair. I believe it to be a mere first move on Russia's part. You big trading people will find it worth watching."

Chilcote shrugged his shoulders. "Oh, I don't know," he said. "I scarcely believe in it. Lakely put a match to the powder in the St. George's, but 'twill only be a noise and a puff of smoke.

But Fraide did not smile. "What is the feeling down at Wark? he asked. "Has it awakened any interest?"

"At Wark? Oh, I—I don't quite know. I have been a little out of touch with Wark in the last few weeks. A man has so many private affairs to look to—" He was uneasy under his chief's scrutiny.

Fraide's lips parted as if to make reply, but with a certain dignified reticence he closed them again and turned away.

Chilcote lifted back in his place and furtively passed his hand over his forehead. His mind was possessed by one consideration—the consideration of himself. He glanced down the crowded, lighted House to the big glass dors; he glanced about him at his colleagues, indifferent or interested; then surreptitiously his fingers strayed to his waistcoat-pocket.

Usually he carried his morphia tabloids with him, but today by a lapse of memory he had left them at home. He knew this, nevertheless he continued to search, while the need of the drug rushed through him with a sense of physical sickness. He lost hold on the business of the House; unconsciously he half rose from his seat.

The man next him looked up. "Hold your ground, Chilcote," he said. "Rayforth is drying up."

With a wave of relief Chilcote dropped back into his place. What ever the confusion in his mind, it was evidently not obvious in his face.

Rayforth resumed his seat, there was the usual slight stir and pause, then Salett, the member for Salchester, rose.

With Salett's first words Chilcote's hand again sought his pocket, and again his eyes strayed towards the doors, but Fraide's erect head and stiff back just in front of him held him quiet. With an effort he pulled out his notes and smoothed them nervously; but though his gaze was fixed on the pages, not a line of Blessington's clear writing reached his mind. He glanced at the face of the Speaker, then at the faces on the Treasury Bench, then once more he leand back in his seat.

The man beside him saw the movement. "Funking the dry-dock?" he whispered, jestingly.

"No,"—Chilcote turned to him suddenly—"but I feel beastly—have felt beastly for weeks."

The other looked at him more closely. "Anything wrong?" he asked? It was a novel experience to be confided in by Chilcote.

'Oh, it's the grind—the infernal grind." As he said it, it seemed to him suddenly that his strength gave way. He forgot his companion, his position, everything except the urgent instinct that filled mind and body. Scarcely knowing what he did, he rose and leaned forward to whisper in Fraide's ear.

Fraide was seen to turn, his thin face interested and concerned, then he was seen to nod once or twice in acquiescence, and a moment later Chilcote stepped quietly out of his place.

One or two men spoke to him as he hurried from the House, but he shook them off almost uncivilly, and making for the nearest exit, hailed a cab.

The drive to Grosvenor Square was a misery. Time after time he changed from one corner of the cab to the other, his acute internal pains prolonged by every delay and increased by every motion. At last, weak in all his limbs, he stepped from the vehicle at his own door.

Entering the house, he instantly mounted the stairs and passed to his own rooms. Opening the bedroom door, he peered in cautiously, then pushed the door wide. The light had been switched on, but the room was empty. With a nervous excitement scarcely to be kept in check, he entered, shut and locked the door, then moved to the wardrobe, and, opening it, drew the tube of tabloids from the shelf.

His hand shook violently as he carried the tube to the table. The strain of the day, the anxiety of the past hours, with their final failure had found suden expression. Mixing a larger dose than he had before allowed himself, he swallowed it hastily, and, walking across the room threw himself, fully dressed, upon the bed.

Near Centerville, Ill., a $10,000 mine payroll was stolen but the bandits didn't get any coal.

"The Masquerader"

By Catherine Cecil Thurston

"Yes. One man is an artist. the other a millionaire. one wants to know what fame is like, the other wants to know how it feels to be really sinfully rich. So they exchange experiences for a month." She laughed

Chilcote laughed as well. "But how?" he asked

"Oh, I told you the idea was absurd. Fancy two people so much alike that neither their friends nor their servants see any difference! Such a thing couldn't be, could it?"

Chilcote looked down at the fire "No," he said, doubtfully "No I suppose not."

"Of course not. There are likenesses, but not freak likenesses like that."

Chilcote's head was bent as she spoke but at the last words he lifted it.

"By Jove! I don't know about that!" he said. "Not so very long ago I saw two men so much alike that I—I" He stopped.

Lillian smiled.

He colored quickly. "You doubt me?" he asked.

"My dear Jack!" Her voice was delicately reproachful

"Then you think that my—my imagination has been playing me tricks?"

"My dear boy! Nothing of the kind. Come back to your place and tell me the whole tale." She smiled again, and patted the couch invitingly.

But Chilcote's balance had been upset For the first time he saw Lillian as one of the watchful suspecting crowd before which he was constantly on guard Acting on the sensation, he moved suddenly towards the door.

"I—I have an appointment at the House," he said quickly. "I'll look in another day when—when I'm better company. I know I'm a bear today. My nerves, you know He came to the couch and took her hand; then he touched her cheek for an instant with his fingers.

"Good-bye," he said. "Take care of yourself—and the kitten he added, with forced gayety as he crossed the room.

That afternoon Chilcote's nervous condition reached its height. All day he had avoided the climax, but no evasion can be eternal and this he realized as he sat in his place on the Opposition benches during the half-hour of wintry twilight that precedes the turning-on of the lights. He walked in that twilight hour, but the application of the knowledge he loved later, when the time came for him to question the government on some point relating to a proposed additional dry-dock at Talbley, the naval base. Then for the first time he knew that the sufferings of the past months could have a visible as well as a hidden side—could disorganize his daily routine as they had already demoralized his will and character.

The thing came upon him with extraordinary lack of preparation He sat through the twilight with tolerable calm, his nervousness showing only in the occasional lifting of his hand to his collar and the frequent changing of his position; but when the lights were turned on, and he leaned back in his seat with closed eyes, he became conscious of a curious impression—a disturbing idea that through his closed lids he could see the faces on the opposite side of the House, see the rows of eyes, sleepy, interested or vigilant. Never before had the sensation presented itself, but, once set up, it ran through all his susceptibilities. By an absurd freak of fancy those varying eyes seemed to pierce through his lids almost through his eyeballs The cold perspiration that was his daily horror broke out on his forehead and at the same moment Frande, his leader, turned leaned over the back of his seat, and touched his knee.

Chilcote started and opened his eyes. "I—I believe I was dozing, he said, confusedly.

Frande smiled his dry, kindly smile "A fatal admission for a member of the Opposition," he said "But I was looking for you earlier in the day, Chilcote. There is something behind this Persian affair I believe it to be a mere first move on Russia's part. You big trading people will find it worth watching"

Chilcote shrugged his shoulders "Oh, I don't know, he said "I scarcely believe in it. Lately put a match to the powder in the St George's, but it will only be a noise and a puff of smoke

But Frande did not smile. "What is the feeling down at Wark" he asked "Has it awakened any interest"

"At Wark" Oh, I—I don't quite know. I have been a little out of touch with Wark in the last few weeks A man has so many private affairs to look to—" He was uneasy under his chief's scrutiny.

Frande's lips parted as if to make reply, but with a certain dignified reticence he closed them again and turned away

Chilcote lifted back in his place and furtively passed his hand over his forehead His mind was possessed by one consideration—the consideration of himself He glanced down the crowded, lighted House to the big glass doors, he glanced about him at his colleagues, indifferent or interested, then surreptitiously his fingers strayed to his waistcoat pocket

Usually he carried his morphia tabloids with him but today by a lapse of memory he had left them at home. He knew this, nevertheless he continued to search, while the need of the drug rushed through him with a sense of physical sickness He lost hold on the business of the House, unconsciously he half rose from his seat

The man next him looked up "Hold your ground, Chilcote" he said "Rayforth is drying up"

With a wave of relief Chilcote dropped back into his place. Whatever the confusion in his mind, it was evidently not obvious in his face

Rayforth resumed his seat, there was the usual slight stir and pause, then Saleth, the member for Salchester, rose

With Saleth's first words Chilcote's hand again sought his pocket, and again his eyes strayed towards the doors but Frande's erect head and stiff back just in front of him held him quiet With an effort he pulled out his notes and smoothed them nervously, but though his gaze was fixed on the pages, not a line of Blessington's clear writing reached his mind. He glanced at the face of the Speaker, then at the faces on the Treasury Bench then once more he leaned back in his seat.

The man beside him saw the movement "Funking the dry-dock" he whispered, jestingly

"No"—Chilcote turned to him suddenly—"but I feel beastly—have felt beastly for weeks"

The other looked at him more closely "Anything wrong?" he asked? It was a novel experience to be confided in by Chilcote

"Oh, it's the grind—the infernal grind As he said it it seemed to him suddenly that his strength gave way. He forgot his companion, his position, everything except the urgent instinct that filled mind and body Scarcely knowing what he did, he rose and leaned forward to whisper in Frande's ear

Frande was seen to turn his thin face interested and concerned, then he was seen to nod once or twice in acquiescence, and a moment later Chilcote stepped quietly out of his place.

One or two men spoke to him as he hurried from the House, but he shook them off almost uncivilly, and making for the nearest exit, hailed a cab.

The drive to Grosvenor Square was a misery Time after time he charged from one corner of the cab to the other, his acute internal pains prolonged by every delay and increased by every motion At last, weak in all his limbs, he stepped from the vehicle at his own door.

Entering the house, he instantly mounted the stairs and passed to his own rooms. Opening the bedroom door, he paused cautiously, then pushed the door wide The light had been switched on, but the room was empty. With a nervous excitement scarcely to be kept in check, he entered, shut and locked the door, then moved to the wardrobe, and, opening it, drew the tube of tabloids from the shelf.

His hand shook violently as he carried the tube to the table The strain of the day, the anxiety of the past hours, with their final failure had found sudden expression Having a larger dose than he had before allowed himself, he swallowed it hastily and, walking across the room threw himself fully dressed, upon the bed.

Near Centerville Ill. a $40,000 mine payroll was stolen, but the bandits didn't get any coal.

Jo Rock comedy "The Whirlwind" and the sixth chapter of "Buffalo Bill" the serial that needs no censorship. Surely a program that should delight the entire family. Showings at 7 and 9.

Saturday should be a notable day at Gruwell's Ideal Theatre this week for the program comprises not only a splendid western feature in "Tangled Trails" starring Neal Hart, but also a western comedy "The Ropin' Fool" showing Bill Rogers in some of his famous lariat work. This together with the regular installment of "The Blue Fox" which is maintaining interest without any diminution. The mangement hopes that the matinee which begins at 2 p. m. and last until 5 will gain the patronage of the kiddies. This is particularly their own show and is being attended weekly by an increasing number of children. Evening shows at 7 and 9.

An especially fine program has been selected for Sunday at Gruwell's Ideal Theatre includes Gloria Swanson, the beautiful star of "Beyond the Rocks" in one of her most interesting offerings "Her Husband's Trademark" the story of a man who used his wife to advertise his business. It is a Paramount picture, lavishly set and handsomely gowned and gives Miss Swanson an unusual opportunity for good acting. Given an Ideal presentation with the accompaniment of the Wisconsin Rapids Quintet this will be delightful entertainment.

Monday and Tuesday occurs the D. A. R. benefit at Gruwell's Ideal Theatre and for this occasion was chosen a picturization of Charles Dickens' famous novel "Our Mutual Friend" which will be shown with a Buster Keaton comedy "The Goat" making a most delightful combination. There will be a matinee on Monday afternoon at 2:30 and another at especially for school children.

Withhold Final Decision On Armour-Morris Merger

(By Associated Press)

Washington, Nov. 2:—Although various interested agencie of the federal government have abort completed their investigation into the probable merger of the packing companies of Armour and Morris, it was indicated today that no final policy would be decided upon until there had been a full exchange of opinion among high administration officials generally.

Whether the administration policy will be decided upon before Senator LaFollette, Republican, Wisconsin has an opportunity to call up his resolution asking full information about the merger, is a question which is causing considerable speculation at the capital.

The Wisconsin senator has indicated that he probably will attempt to get action on the resolution early next week, and it is considered possible that should the resolution be adopted, it may inject new considerations into the problem and still further delay a decision.

Theaters

Jo Rock comedy "The Whirlwind" and the sixth chapter of "Buffalo Bill" the serial that needs no censorship. Surely a program that should delight the entire family. Showings at 7 and 9.

Saturday should be a notable day at Grawell's Ideal Theatre this week for the program comprises not only a splendid western feature in "Tangled Trails" starring Neal Hart, but also a western comedy "The Ropin' Fool" showing Bill Rogers in some of his famous lariat work. This together with the regular installment of "The Blue Fox" which is maintaining interest without any diminution. The mangement hopes that the matinee which begins at 2 p. m. and last until 5 will gain the patronage of the kiddies. This is particularly their own show and is being attended weekly by an increasing number of children. Evening shows at 7 and 9.

An especially fine program has been selected for Sunday at Grawell's Ideal Theatre includes Gloria Swanson, the beautiful star of "Beyond the Rocks" in one of her most interesting offerings "Her Husband's Trademark" the story of a man who used his wife to advertise his business. It is a Paramount picture, lavishly set and handsomely gowned and gives Miss Swanson an unusual opportunity for good acting. Given an ideal presentation with the accompaniment of the Wisconsin Rapids Quintet this will be delightful entertainment.

Monday and Tuesday occurs the D. A. R. benefit as Grawell's Ideal Theatre and for this occasion was chosen a picturization of Charles Dickens' famous novel "Our Mutual Friend" which will be shown with a Buster Keaton comedy "The Goat" making a most delightful combination. There will be a matinee on Monday afternoon at 2:30 and another at especially for school children.

Withhold Final Decision On Armour-Morris Merger

(By Associated Press)

Washington, Nov. 2:—Although various interested agencie. of the federal government have about completed their investigation into the probable merger of the packing companies of Armour and Morris, it was indicated today that no final policy would be decided upon until there had been a full exchange of opinion among high administration officials generally.

Whether the administration policy will be decided upon before Senator LaFollette, Republican, Wisconsin has an opportunity to call up his resolution asking full information about the merger, is a question which is causing considerable speculation at the capital.

The Wisconsin senator has indicated that he probably will attempt to get action on the resolution early next week, and it is considered possible that should the resolution be adopted, it may inject new considerations into the problem and still further delay a decision.

Blood Hounds Will Seek Drainage Ditch Blasters

Appleton, Nov. 24—Blood hounds probably will be used to find the person or persons who exploded a large charge of dynamite in the drainage ditch between the farms owned by Peter Milcher and Theodore Barbian, near here.

A large hole was dug by the explosion and portions of the fence wrecked.

Barbian and Milcher have been in a court battle for more than two years. Neither man is benefitted by the explosion.

Fond du Lac, Nov. 24—The barns, horses, cattle and swine on the farm of John Schaefer, a farmer living near Rosendale were destroyed by fire of unknown origin yesterday at a loss estimated at about $20,000, it was learned here today.

DENIES "BIGNESS" REAL DANGER TO COLLEGE SPORTS

IMMENSE STADIA WILL NOT BREED PROFESSIONALISM, GRIFFITH SAYS; DEFENDS BUILDING PROGRAMS

Chicago—The mere bigness of intercollegiate athletics, as evidenced by the erection of stadiums in which to stage the games, does not constitute a danger to the amateur sport, according to Major John L. Griffith, Western Conference athletic commissioner, who today replied to objectors who contend the immense stadia would breed professionalism.

So long as the games are honestly administered and kept from the hands of gamblers, the stadia are an asset, Major Griffith said. The philosophy of the objectors is similar to the men of a generation ago who opposed big business because of its bigness, he declared.

Unreasonable Objection

"Some persons," said Maj. Griffith, "are inclined to view with alarm this unprecedented development of interest in sports and fear that the erection of these stadia constitutes a menace to our college athletics. These men were afraid of large business interests because they were so large in scope. Theodore Roosevelt pointed out at that time that there were good trusts and bad trusts and suggested that a business institution should be judged not so much by its size as by methods which it employed. And so it is with our colleges today.

"If our great games are kept clean, if the men who play do so for the love of the game and the benefits which they derive from playing, if we can keep our amateur athletics out of the hands of the gamblers, both professional and amateur, then these stadia and the contests will make for a better citizenship, and this means a better America.

"Big Ten" All Building

"Among the ten universities in the Western Conference all have stadium building projects which are either completed or under way. Ohio State University has dedicated a stadium which will seat 63,000; the cornerstone for a stadium at the University of Illinois has been laid; a campaign to raise funds with which to build a stadium is now being conducted at the University of Minnesota; the athletic council at the University of Wisconsin has a building plan which will not be completed for several years; Michigan, Iowa, Northwestern, have good fields; Purdue plans a new field and Indiana also; the University of Chicago, with stands that will seat 32,000 found that a stadium four times as large is necessary for intersectional games."

VIRGINIA GIRL AGAIN ELECTED—For the second time the Conservative voters of Plymouth elected Lady Astor to Parliament. Anna Adams Gordon Sees Extension of "Bone Dry" Regime Throughout World

BY ANNA ADAMS GORDON

President, World's Women's Christian Temperance Union

Philadelphia—For 40 years the Women's Christian Temperance Union has been working for prohibition in 40 nations.

An international educational program has been conducted in practically every civilized part of the globe. Thousands of workers speaking many languages have been carrying forward the work.

All over the world we have been imparting to peoples of all the races the fundamental knowledge of the effect of alcahal on the human system.

Discouraged and Encouraged

Difficulties and obstacles of course have beset these W. C. T. U. workers but they have been encouraged and cheered on by two facts:

ONE: They always have known they were a part of a great organization, that they were all banded together for one purpose, and could count on the support and cooperation of their fellow workers everywhere.

TWO: Almost from the beginning we achieved some results; and with the passing years and the extending of our efforts into newer and larger territories we have seen the work going successfully forward.

In recent years great strides toward world-wide prohibition have been made. With these advancements many reinforcements have joined our ranks. Many rational, thinking men and women the world over who were not originally in sympathy with prohibition have come to see the sound scientific basis of our program and the necessity of our objective and have joined with us and are now lending their best efforts to our work.

To Continue Program

We shall carry on our program along practically the same lines we have followed for 40 years, and we are confident of a successful termination of our long-sought objective of world-wide prohibition.

The position of the W. C. T. U. in the matter f cigarets and tobacco is exactly what it always has been. We do not put tobacco and cigarets side by side with alcoholic beverages.

Our national program on the subject of tobacco is an educational one, outlined and carried forward in the interest of the health of boys and girls everywhere.

It is based on established scientific facts that prove beyond question the injurious effect of narcotics on the physical and nervous system.

We have worked largely with the school and other educational officials and authorities and almost without exception they have shown the keenest interest and readiest disposition to cooperate with us.

Probably This Is Just His Way Of Getting Painters

Chicago.—Malcolm C. Fitch of Chicago, maker and finisher of children's furniture, maintains that beer is the best and least expensive foundation for a primary coat of paint.

"I pour it into my colors for mixing," Mr. Fitch explained. "When I have applied upon the primary coat to the children's furniture I make, I stencil upon it pictures of earths, moons, suns, stars and fairies. All this I do in my little basement workshop. I make the children happy and incidentally I make real beer really useful.

"Any old pine board will serve to make furniture for little folk. To make a chair, cut a piece 12 x 12 inches for the seat, strips 1inch wide for runs and 1-½ inch wide by 18 inches high for legs. The back, 21 inches high, should be supported by two 10 inch cross bars, and should have a panel for the fairy stencil. Use any color of automobile enamel for finish."

The 32 world's champion good looking women will be chosen but none of the winners will be surprised.

Bread And Water Ration To Stimulate Memories

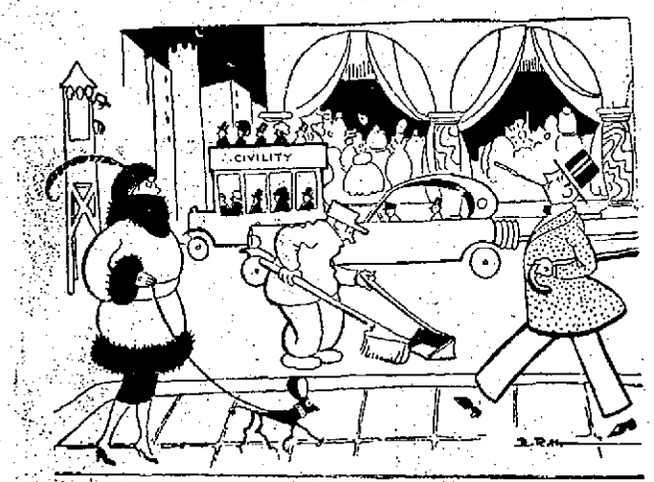
(By Associated Press)

Racine, Wis., Nov. 22—Municipal Judge Burgess has inaugurated the custom of fixing a sentence of three days, on bread and water, for drunks who are continuously intoxicated and who then find themselves unable to indicate the place where they obtained the liquor.

Failure to find the place where the intoxicants are being sold, led the judge to inaugurate this system in the belief that the drunks might be restored their memory after three days of starvation rations.

GUYED TO NEW YORK

FIFTH AVENUE



This street begins at Greenwich Village and grows haughtier per block per minute. Without Fifth Avenue, the New York sightseeing industry would go on the rocks.

There are more vacant millionaires' houses—No, that's wrong; strike th out. Thus: There are more vacant houses of millionaires along Fifth Avenue than anywhere else in the world.

Sightseeing spielers point out the homes of the late Andrew Carnegie, the late Henry C. Frick, the late Alfred G. Vanderbilt; and the wondering tourist gazes upon the endless line of boarded windows and boarded doors and concludes that most all these millionaires are dead.

Nobody but the tax assessor seems to know who owns the other deserted castles, and one wonders why New York's prominent bootleggers don't buy up some of these gilded palaces and have the electric light turned on.

Fifth Avenue is a fine place to take your wife—if you handcuff her and make her stay on top of a bus. If she ever gets loose among the modistes' salons and hat shops you'll have to file a petition in bankruptcy when you get back to the old home town.

Delmonico's, at 44th street, is a good place to look at from the outside. Escorts who wish to distract the lady's attention and make a quick and thrifty getaway are urged to point out the bank building across the street where Sherry's used to dispense high-priced food ,and where Will Hays now hands out high-priced advice to the movie industry.

Traffic regulations along Fifth Avenue are the best in the world (everything along the avenue claims that distinction.) When the lights flash from the traffic towers everything along the avenue stops except the high cost of living.

Up at 59th street you'll find Central Park. It contains 862 acres, the Metropolitan Museum, Cleopatra's Needle, baby carriages, nursemaids, policemen and other curio. That peculiar smell you notice is the zoo. You can't miss it.

WOMAN'S RIGHT TO SLAY SELF STIRS ENGLAND

CASE OF UNSUCCESSFUL PARTNER TO SUICIDE PACT RAISES QUESTION THAT STIRS INTELLECTUAL LEADERS.

BY MILTON BRONNER

NEA Service Staff Correspondent.

London.—Has a woman a right to commit suicide?

Should she be sent to prison for attempting self-destruction?

The law says "No" to the first question and "Yes" to the second. But a score of the most distinguished persons in Great Britain protest the law is wrong.

The controversy, growing spectacular, revolves around Mrs. Maud Hibbert, surviver in a suicide pact with a man. After lying in jail six weeks awaiting trial on a charge of attempting suicide, she was convicted and pentenced to serve nine months in prison at hard labor.

Half of Hrs. Hibbert's sentence has gone by and petitions for clemency have been sent to the home secretary, urging that she was "led away by the man, has already suffered punishment ....and that such a punishement is not calculated to increase her respect for life nor act as deterrent to others."

Drinkwater's View

Says John Drinkwater, famous playwright, one of the signers of the petition:

"Before a woman reaches a frame of mind which leads to such an act she must have endured the greatest possible mental agony. To keep her in prison on top of that seems to me both cruel and futile."

Stephen McKenna, novelist, says:

"I hold the view that anybody's life is the property of that particular person. If you wish to take your own life you ought to be allowed to do so. Suicide often is hard on one's family, but I don't think any department of the government has the right to keep people alive if they don't want to live."

Interest Is Widespread

The case is attracting great attention because in some cases under the British law the survivor in a double suicide pact can be indicted for murder as well as for attempting suicide.

Petitions for clemency for Mrs. Hibbert include Viscountess Rhondda, coal operator and suffragist; May Sinclair, novelist; Mrs. Wintringham, member of Parliament; Miss Bernard Shaw, John Masefield, G. K. Chesterton, Maurice Hewlett, Arnold Bennett, H. G. Wells, John Galsworthy, E. F. Benson, Sir Henry Newbolt and Bertrand Russell.

Danish Princess Engaged To Marry Poor Nobleman

Copenhagen.—The recent announcement of the engagement of Princess Dagmar, youngest sister of King Christian of Denmark, has desclosed a romance between a maid of royal blood and the poor scion of an ancient family.

The Princess, who is 32 years old, is understood to have been secretly engaged to her future husband, Joergen de Castenskiold, for some time. He is a nephew of Grevenkop de Castenskiold, until recently the Danish ambassador to the court of St. James.

The engagement was officialy announced late in October at England, the summer residence of King Christian and Queen Alexandrine. All other members of the royal family and those of the de Castenskiold family were present.

Queen Louise rose at the end of the dinner and said: "It gives me great pleasure to announce the engagement of my beloved daughter, Dagmar, to Joergen de Castenskiold. May God bless them both."

The Queen then beckoned to Mr. de Castenskiold. He went to the Queen, who kissed him on the cheek, and then King Christian shook him heartily by the hand.

Patrons Of Pennsylvania Heavy Eaters Figures Show

Chicago.—Approximately 2,600,000 eggs, 1,500,000 pounds of fresh meat, 1,300,00 pounds of potatoes, 500,000 pounds of sugar, 5,000,000 rolls, 150,000 pounds of coffee and 500,000 quarts of milk and cream are consumed yearly by the Pennsylvania railroad dining car patrons, according to the Pennsylvania News, publication of that railroad.

The railroad's dining-car service, serving 10,000 meals daily if operated simultaneously, could serve 4,236 persons at one sitting. The 125 cars in the service, if placed end to end, would form a mobile restaurant approximately two miles long.

A force of about 1,556 employes is required to prepare and serve the 3,575,000 meals which railroad waiters annually carry down the aisles of diners traveling forty and fifty miles an hour.

These meals are prepared in diminutive kitchens having a floor space 19-½ feet long and 2-½ feet wide. Each kitchen having four cooks, a chef and three assistants. Each car represents an investment of $30,000 of which $8,000 is spent for silverware, untensils and linen.

Red Sublett Looking 'Em Over in New York

Here is Red gathering material for the interview in the adjoining column. While he didn't say so the look on his face indicates that he feels considerable sorry that he didn't get to New York before the passing of the era of the ultra short skirt and the accompanying rolled hose. But then, as Red says, 'calves is calves.'

Science Aids New York Police In Identifying Unknown Dead

BY NORRIS QUINN

NEA Service Staff Writer.

New York.—The dry as-dust anthropologist, delving into forgotten strata and piecing together fragmentary bones of prehistoric monsters, today has turned teacher to the New York police.

His knowledge has been turned to practical account in the newest and most spectacular branch of police research—identifying unknown dead.

Six hundred unknown bodies are found yearly in the streets, alleys and waters of Greater New York. But through lessons learned from the anthropologist 87 per cent were identified beyond dispute in 1920, more than 86 per cent in 1921 and a larger proportion of success is looked for this year.

How It's Done

Captain John H. Ayres, chief of the missing presons bureau of the New York Police Department, today told in an exclusive interview with NEA Service how he has accomplished his successes.

"If the corpse is complete and clothed, identification is comparatively simple," he says. "We examine the pockets for letters, documents, jewelry or keys.

"If these are lacking we turn to the clothes themselves. Usually there are tailor marks. In the better grade of clothing the name of the owner often is sewn in.

"Many bodies are identified by shoes. But the most valuable clothing clew is the laundry mark.

"When there is no clothing, we have o turn to the body itself. Are there distinguishing marks—scars or deformities? If not, the teeth are the most accurate—and usually an unfailing means of identification.

"But when a body, besides being unclothed, also is headless, the problem becomes intricate.

Anthropologist Steps In

"It is there that the anthropologist steps in with the knowledge he has gained in reconstructing dinosaurs and pterodactyls from the most meagre fossil remains.

"Just as he would work with a fossil, he examines the pigment of the hair in the victim's body and tells us the color of the hair on the missing head—and sometimes he can tell us the color of the eyes too.

"Taking a legless, armless and headless corpse, the anthropologist tells us the victim's height and weight. He examines the blood corpuscles and tells us the approximate age.

"Or, given only a thigh bone, he tells us the owner's sex, age, weight and height—if the owner was not of abnormal or grotesque proportions.

"Still more—from a fleshless skull, the anthropologist can deduce the owner's age, sex and race and even make a good guess as to his nationality.

"All these things are being done—anthropology is being applied daily and it's yielding identifications that can't be disputed. It gets results when members of the dead person's family cannot identify the corpse."

Universal finger-printing would do away with most of the expense and difficulty now involved in identifying unknown dead, Captain Ayres believes.

Fight To Oust Married Women Teachers In London

London.—The fight against married women acting as school teachers in the public schools of England, which has been going on for some time reached a climax when sixty-four married women teachers were discharged from their duties in one of the London suburbs.

During the war married women were practically the only persons available for teaching, and since then they have kept their jobs despite the efforts of many veterans associations to have them expelled in order to allow ex-service men and nurses to resume their positions.

Women Of Ashanti Send Silver Stool To Princess Mary

London.—A silver stool has been presented to Princess Mary, Viscountess Lascelles, as the wedding gift of the Queen Mothers of Ashanti and the Gold Coast. The gift was presented by Lady Guggisberg, wife of the governor of the Gold Coast, it having been given her by Queen Mother Gewa Akoto, of Ashanti. The stool is an exact replica of the Queen Mother's own stool.

Accompanying the gift a letter from Queen Akoto, deschibing how the stool was made and consecrated. The letter reads as follows:

"I place this gift in your hands. It is a gift for the King's child on her wedding.

"Ashanti stool-makers have carved it. All queen-mothers who dwell here have contributed toward it.

"It may be that the King's child has heard of the Golden Stool of Ashanti. That is the stool which contains the soul of the Ashanti nation. All we women of Ashati thank the Governor exceedingly, because he has declared that the English will never again ask us to hand over that stool. This stool we give gladly. It does not contain our soul, as the Golden Stool does, but it contains all the love of us Queen Mothers and of our women.

Women's Association Has Program Of Legislation

Madison, Wis The legislative committee of the Wisconsin Women's Progressive Association will meet here tomorrow to start consideration of a legislative program to be submitted to the 1923 session of the legislature.

The meeting tomorrow is to consider marketing and the needs for legislation on the subject. Weekly sessions will follow each one to consider a different place of legislation.

Press Club Has Big Bronze Bell Of Cruiser Milwaukee

Milwaukee, Wis.—Among the many relics to be found in the Milwaukee Press club, where hundreds of signatures of presidents, congressmen prominant actors, writers and artists who have been in Milwaukee, have been placed in seperate panels around the walls of the club, there is to be found a 800-pound brons bell, of the wrecked U. S. S. Milwaukee, given to the local club by special act of Congress. Dec. 13 the bell will be dedicated with appropriate ceremony in the clubrooms.

The club and its members through the medium of their publications took a leading part in the movement to have a navel vessel named after this city.

The cruiser went on the rocks off Eureka, Cal., Jan. 13, 1917 and was so completely rocked that it was stricken from the navy lists June 23, 1919, and ordered sold as junk. Charles W. Lamb of the Press club, conceived the idea of bringing to Milwaukee some relic of the cruiser which bore the city's name and it was decided nothing could be more representative or portable than the ship's bell, and that no resting place could be more appropriate than the Press club.

CALVES IS CALVES COWPUNCHER SAYS; HE SHOULD KNOW

RED SUBLETT HAS SEEN THEM IN TEXAS AND NEW YORK AND THINKS THEY'RE ALL ABOUT THE SAME.

BY DUDLEY SIDGALL

NEA Service Staff Writer.

New York.—"This here is the greatest town in the greatest town in the world," said Red Sublett, "for a lonesome cowpuncher to divide himself and his attention to the study of that important cowboy subject to which I refer—the study of calves. Look at 'em!"

The scene was the park across from Madison Square Garden, where Red and many of his kind were striving for hospital cups and other prizes in Tex Austin's cowboy riding tournament. To this park come daily the perfect 36 models from the nearby stock and suit district for their noontime siesta. Red and his fellow students were learned to save themselves up against the iron fences between 12 and 1 and watch the parade go by.

"Near as I can figger from what I've seen, always allowing that I ain't see so much as I could if I'd been here when they was wearing 'em shorter," Red continued, "there ain't so much difference between these calves what we're seeing now and the calves which cowboys meets professionally.

Three Kinds of Calves

"Take three generalized classes for example. There's show calves and beef calves and bucking calves. You get them kinds here in New York just the same as we have them in Texas. Only you New Yorkers see mostly the show calves, for the other kinds seem to have took shelter under these long skirts from Paris."

Red lighted a cigaret, blew a whiff of smoke through his nose and tossed the match on the grass.

"Ever hear of a dogie'?" he went on. "That's a calf with a brand onto it which won't stay near its mother. I bet we're seein' plenty of dogies going by right now. Then the east and west both has lots of 'mavericks,' which is calves that ain't got no brand but just runs around loose. We have what we call 'woolies' too. Maybe you city guys use that name for the calves with fuzzy coverings. And how about 'deadheads'?—the same being calves which just sits down and waits peaceful for a cowboy to walk up to 'em."

Thoughtfully Red looked over the passing show, unmindful of the curious gazes of the New York girls who were visibly impressed by his enormous sombrero, his checkered shirt, and his fancy boots.

"There's only one big difference as I can see," he continued. "The calves out west hung around a rang all the time, while mighty guess is that these here ones never get near a range only to ask their mother is supper ready."

Better Living Conditions Increase Indian Population

Washington.—The Indian race is not a dying one. E. B. Meritt, Assistant Indian Commissioner, says the 340,917 Indians now in the United States represent an increase of approximately 13,500 over the number ten years ago.

The increase has been brought about, the assistant commissioner says, by improved housing conditions and increased hospital and medical facilities. There are 78 hospitals at the Indian reservations and schools, and there are employed in the Indian Service 150 physicians, 81 nurses and 70 field matrons, the latter visiting the homes of Indians to improve living conditions.

Three of our most beautiful words are "Dinner is ready."
